Contact Tracing:

BC-CDC information on contact tracing:

1. When a person tests positive for COVID-19, they become a “case”.
2. A public health nurse interviews the case to identify people they’ve spent time with. These people are “contacts.”
3. Public health gets in touch with the contacts and asks them about symptoms of COVID-19.
4. Not every contact needs to be identified: only those who could have been exposed to the case’s respiratory droplets from coughing, sneezing or speaking.
5. Public health maintains the case’s privacy. A case can choose to tell others about their diagnosis but should not do their own contact tracing.
6. Contacts with symptoms are sent for testing.
7. If they test positive, they become a ‘case’ and the process repeats.
8. Contacts with no symptoms are asked to self-isolate and monitor for symptoms for 14 days after their last contact with the case.
9. Contact tracing helps people get diagnosed earlier and reduces the chance of spreading the virus.
